The Cleavage Culture Explored A Breastcentric Comedy

"Swink clearly has her heart in the right place"
Nina Metz, Chicago Tribune

"Bold and inspiring"
Monica Schneider, CTV News

"Breastcentric. Celebrates all women!"
Mary Houlhan, Chicago Sun-Times

Through the stories of six women and one 11-year old girl, the play explores those plentiful appendages that have garnered poetic accolades and the painters' fervor. Melody's compelling monologues take the audience on a journey into the muddled mind of a young girls' pubescent transformation to the libertine life reminiscences of a 60-something former hippie wild child and their quizzical, quirky takes on body parts and their personal relationship with them. Topics range from size, expectations, inheritances, and the male marketing agenda as witnessed throughout the 20th Century... in other words, our Cleavage Culture explored.

$50 per ticket includes:

- Pre-performance reception at CityStage
- Passed hors d'oeuvres from the 350 Grill
